

LETTER TO EDITOR

WANTED—THE RICH FELLOW

Editor Day Book:—The item, "A Great City Is a Great Loneliness," is far from being so.

I am a young man of good habits and have found out nine cases out of ten a girl is looking for a fellow with plenty of money to spend. If he has not got it he might as well move on.

I have kept company with several good, respectable girls, but got the cold shoulder when I could not come across with as much as probably some other fellow.

Now I am only earning $60 a month and must work every day in the month for that, but have prospects of very good salary in the near future. But the future does not seem to appeal to the young ladies nowadays.

Another thing, they generally are the fault themselves of men accosting them. They will stand on a street corner and flirt or make remarks which draw him on, and if they did not encourage him he would not bother them.

So they mostly bring loneliness on themselves by not wanting a moderate wage earner, and the ones they want are all taken. C. A. B.

WOULD CALL IT "JACOB A. RIIS"

The following resolution has been passed and submitted to the Board of Education and the Committee on Buildings and Grounds by Gertrude Howe Britton and Harry A. Lipsky, two members of the School Board:

Whereas, The Board of Education is acquiring a site at Throop, Lytle and Taylor streets, whereon to erect an elementary school; and

Whereas, This site is located in a district inhabited by recent arrivals in this country or the first generation born of such immigrants; and

Whereas, There recently passed away Jacob A. Riis, a man who devoted his life to the work of Americanizing the immigrant and to the general civic betterment of his city; whose activity gave inspiration to the good citizenship of the United States, and who earned the title of "The finest immigrant that ever came to this country;" therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the school to be erected on the Throop and Lytle streets site be known as the Jacob A. Riis School.

(Signed) Harry A. Lipsky,
Gertrude Howe Britton.

BRANDEIS' ADJUSTING IDEA PROVED A SUCCESS

Washington, D. C., June 29.—A new way for adjusting troubles which continually arise between employers and employes was devised four years ago by Louis Brandeis as a result of the garmentmakers' strike in New York. What he calls an application of the principle of democracy to industry in the form of the preferential open shop protocol has been in operation now for this period of time and according to a report by the Department of Labor its success has been marked.

Out of 7,653 cases brought before the "institution of clerks", during these four years, 7,477, or 97.7 per cent, were promptly adjusted by the clerks and deputy clerks representing the two sides. Of the 179 cases referred to the higher board, 12 involved a single issue, so that actually only 168 cases were brought before this body. Of these 169 were satisfactorily adjusted.

In only 9 cases, which is one-tenth of one per cent of the total cases, did the board fail to reach a decision, and these cases were referred to the Board of Arbitration, which is the final court of appeals in this industry.

The grievances adjusted covered wide fields and included discrimination against individuals; wrongful discharge, non-payment for legal holidays and claims for wages due.
